G-197 Integrating Access and Functional Needs Into Emergency Planning

The purpose of this 16-hour course is to provide participants responsible for providing emergency planning and response with the information necessary to utilize disability access and functional needs inclusive practices, and to provide updated skills and knowledge needed to prepare for, respond to, and recover from emergencies. It is critical that staff with key roles and authority attend this course; this is not “just training”, but a commitment to integrate access and functional needs into emergency planning.

Target Audience: Tribal emergency managers and planners; first responders including law enforcement, fire protection, and emergency medical services; resource agencies including transportation, communications, public works, and public health. Government organizations and non-government organizations (NGOs), whom have, as a primary part of their mission, performed emergency planning, response, and/or recovery duties. Planners and managers of mass transit, para-transit, rural transit, and NGO and private transit operators (i.e. taxi, shuttle services, non-emergency medical) evacuation planners, transportation planners and civic planners, and emergency management consultants.
